so as to have them saved as green and full as possible; store them under cover, and it will be found that more good food can be Ever introduced in this Market. Call and examine raised to the acre than of any known gran or grass. That oat straw is of great value has long been proved, and allowed to be of equal value to hay when cut green; adling to this the grain, say fifty bushels to the acre, would gould sive nearly a ton of the best of the best of feed, on which not only does young stock grow thrifty and large, and the condition of work horses improve, but with bran or meal it is one of the New Tin and Stove House. very best things to feed to cows for milk

Having a certain amount of milk to supply daily last fall, I used every means to keep up the quantity and quality, and tried almost every variety of feed. I found posi-tive evidence that corn fodder was the worst of all, even at no cost, while sheaf oats, cut green, were a cheap feed at forty cents a dozen bundles of average size. The corn fodder was good, full grown and well cured, but I would not feed it to cows I wanted a good supply of milk from, if I could get it for nothing. The only feed found superior to oats was clover cut in first bloom and well cured, with four ears of corn and four quarts of bran once a day. Od this a fine supply of butter may be looken or, and a cow to do her very best.

It may also be said in favor of oats that they are easy to grow, nice to handle, and the most wholesome and nutritious food for stock, poultry, and hogs included; are early harvested and the land left in good condition for clover, which should follow.

Adam Grim, of Jefferson, Wisconsin, who is a successful Apiarist, commenced the season last spring with two hundred and eighty-five swarms of bees, and increased the number by swarming to six hundred and forty. These swarms produced within a fraction of twenty-one thousand pounds of honey, which sold, strained, for four thousand one hundred dollars. The Jefferson County Union

"We often hear women say that there is no remunerative employment for them. As an answer to this, we would state that Mr. Grim has two daughters, who bave each taken separate charge of an important part of the Apiary. Miss Kate Grim has by her skill and attention the past summer, earned one thousand two hundred dollars net, and Miss Margaret Grim has earned one thousand four hundred dollars
